US3R498377	19-NOV-21_04:23:35	No.56144	It's amazing to me how in just a month or so, this board has lost all its desperation to 'get the information out there' and has settled into the grim reality of dealing with the hand that has been dealt. We've already established that none of us, and probably only some of the government, are aware of the real figures for the injections and the subsequent deaths from the first rounds of the cull. Injection no. 3 is being administered and perhaps in six months, it'll be no. 4. Bear in mind that the British government has ordered 760 million doses, which is enough for a course of 9 injections for every man, woman and child who are on the official books.
US3R692711	19-NOV-21_04:26:12	No.56145	I don't think it'll take all 9, as a significant proportion of people will have already died and the 'authorities' will be looking for something other than the 'unvaxxed' to blame it on. This could tie in with Bill Gates' latest pronouncement that we need to be ready for smallpox attacks at airports, although that is somewhat US-centric and would make more sense for a larger population over a wider area. Britain may need another approach to corral and manage the survivors. It is under these circumstances that we start to find ourselves in the upside-down world of changing narratives.
US3R238732	19-NOV-21_04:26:56	No.56146	^56144 On the subject of grim reality, the gauntlet is now down in Europe. Austrian lockdown has now progressed to "mandatory" vaccinations in February. Germany is locking down (unsurprisingly) and will see how it goes before trying to attack its own citizens, and it looks like Rotterdam in the Netherlands is primed to explode. Dock strike and uncoordinated police presence could lead to fatalities. The global chessboard is seeing some moves.
US3R498377	19-NOV-21_04:28:04	No.56147	^56145 Britain is in wait-and-see mode. I'm trying to get something from behind the scenes about the state of the Exchequer. Parliament knows that the country is teetering on the edge of a fatal default. The country has been bankrupt for years, and the extra trillion invented to deal with "the Covid" has started the time-bomb ticking. We don't have many, if any (!) years anymore, and it's in the interests of Whitehall that the UK is not the first domino to fall. Germany and it's closest natural ally Austria would be the obvious choice and I guess if they can collapse the Netherlands as well, then there'd be no backstop from the Dutch banks. Nobody else matters. UK is a bit like a weakling at the edge of a gang fight, skittering around in the shadows looking to rob the wallet and phone of a fallen fighter. Not our proudest moment.
US3R298466	19-NOV-21_04:31:09	No.56148	Are we gonna lockdown? That's what I want to know.
US3R238732	19-NOV-21_04:31:22	No.56149	^56147 OK, pretty brutal. They're keeping it to the civil police forces at the moment. I thought Netherlands dock strike might see the army brought in "to help out" at which point the lines start to get blurred between making up worker numbers and enforcing security mandates with checkpoints. See where I'm going? I truly hope the UK is not as spineless as you make us appear. I wonder whether "our mob" is more fearsome than theirs on the continent. We've had years of football hooliganism to learn how to trash the cops. And let's face it, our Gay Pride Police Force is not really something to be afraid of.

US3R118774	19-NOV-21_04:31:54	No.56150	^56144 The grim reality is that we are at war. Western populations are at war with their governments. What's more profound to me is that all the morons who took the clotshots are basically the first casualties. We have to think of them as dead already, and start to plan around them. The NHS is supposed to have about a million worker drones who are going to be busy over the winter scooping the dead out of ambulances and euthanazing old people with Midazolam. It'll be a big operation for the government to get rid of the bodies, hide the numbers and falsify the causes of death. The high priests of the NHS will happily comply. The die-off will take a good couple of years if they're not going to overwhelm the resources. This gives us a window of opportunity to organise. Get the details of the main players. Map the pressure points and when the mandates come, produce events that the media cannot ignore. The idiots who watch television are not important obviously. It's for the resistance movements in other countries that can access MSM.
