

Double Dagger

US3R722970	08-NOV-20_04:12:16	No.71129	Thank you to LF. Right on cue, as the lockdown reaches its first weekend and there is a “literally” captive audience, the western media announce that Biden has won the American presidential election. To those still left who look beyond the western mainstream, we see that this is anything but true. It appears that as they see the new world coming galloping over the horizon, there is no need to bother with the truth anymore. Perhaps Colby's quote is prescient: “Our program of disinformation will be complete when everything the public believes is false.”
US3R172243	08-NOV-20_04:13:11	No.71130	It's the lies by omission that get me. Never a word about the uncovering of all the dead people voting, the videos of whistleblowers for the USPS, the arrest of Dallas Jones by the FBI, the voting machine 'glitches', the videos of people pulling up in station wagons and unloading boxes onto pump trucks, with no chain of custody, video of election workers altering ballots in the counting stations, observers kept twenty odd feet away. This has to be the most comprehensive gaslighting operation ever perpetuated on the western world. Certainly the most far reaching. To shut down whole countries, while they rig, what might conceivably be, the last American election in the old style. Wow. Just wow.
US3R287345	08-NOV-20_04:13:27	No.71131	So, what for the future? Now that there is no more honest media, can we expect the tech giants to go all out and remove opposing political views? The purge on Twitter, Facebook has been easy because the target audience is so weak, but what about the independents? What about things like the Switching Station which relays these boards? That could be attacked at the ISP level.
US3R722970	08-NOV-20_04:15:01	No.71132	^71130 Makes you realise the importance of boards like these, right? The anonymity sucks, but the realisation that it has to happen at all is proof in itself of the desperate situation. When Captain Cutlery had his meltdown back in the year :) it almost (almost) seemed like an overreaction, but all it really was, was the guy waking up fully to how bad things are.
US3R172243	08-NOV-20_04:16:06	No.71133	^71131 Purging the opposition is one thing, but they're getting together target lists in the States. The odds on internment camps are shortening, especially as they have the cover of the Covid to try and legitimise an excuse! OK, that's extreme, but the purging isn't. Did you see the flag notice on the relay page to Random Skies? They got denial of service when it was using an algo to post stuff from these boards. They're doing it behind the scenes now and using a dropbox to pick up the pages as raw PDFs. I imagine that without direct intervention, that's a client-side button press and can't be interfered with. But it does mean that the next site to go down would have to be Random Skies itself. That might even be classed as book burning, no? I hope they've got something in reserve.