

Double Dagger

| | | | |
|------------|--------------------|----------|--|
| US3R287477 | 24-SEP-20_06:35:04 | No.70012 | The world's governments are now entering a one-way system. At no point, from now on, can any of them call a halt to the virus narrative. They cannot back out of it and say they made a mistake. Every time scientists, doctors, medical staff or government officials break cover and point out the illogical nonsense of this medical hoax, or even offer up the cure for the current cold virus, the government apparatus simply doubles down on their story. When people protest, the authorities threaten with violence. They arrest, they smear, they fine, imprison or disappear the dissenters, all in the name of the 'public good.' They are now committed to the way forward that they have initiated. In the short term, they can play the extreme emergency card, giving out information in shrill, urgent bulletins as though disaster is imminent. The media are tasked with the endless repetition of threatening slogans, and the long justifications of invented statistics. But that cannot last. At some point, the end game of all this has to be revealed, however gradually. The first sign that is apparent to anyone who can successfully operate a bank account, is that after years of penny-pinching austerity, tweaking of taxes and dire threats of inflating the economy, suddenly all of that doesn't matter, because... the virus. Now, in order to 'save the world', developed nations are inventing fiat debt at such a staggering level that money itself is becoming meaningless. By materialising untold trillions, the world's benchmarks for monetary value have disappeared, leaving only the blind acceptance in business and public life that your pound/buck/yen/euro will be accepted as a means of exchange next time you need to trade. The conditions have thus been created for the world to birth a new form of money. We know what that is going to be. It will be a digital currency with no cash equivalent. Why? Because, without a means of physical barter (cash), your money is issued to you purely as an allowance. At source, there will be deductions. Income tax, local tax, public health insurance, a carbon tax, a sales tax, and any other deduction that is deemed necessary at any time. You will be left with an allowance for available foods and basic needs. As this system is developed, you will then have a personal travel allowance governed by monthly carbon points that will dictate how far you can travel, what your mode of transport will be, when it will occur and who you may meet. Your health insurance will cover your vaccination record that must be proven through your mobile phone app at the entrance to public buildings, shops and food banks. Your 'employment' will be micromanaged by your Global Identification Employee Record Number. If you don't turn up where the GPS says you should be, you won't get paid. If you don't meet your performance targets, you won't get paid. If you are ill, or choose to say you are ill, you may be removed from your rented room(s) and placed in government-approved confinement until you find yourself well enough to resume your duties. If, for some reason, you should ever object to this new society that is now visible on the horizon, and your Global Identification handset overhears you expressing dissent, plotting insurrection, or committing sabotage against the system... you will be switched off. |
|------------|--------------------|----------|--|